Dear Sisters and Brothers in Christ,

It was a small island resting in a natural harbor known as Subic Bay, The Philippines. Our ship was anchored in the bay, and after nearly six months on that ship, a friend, a fellow Marine, and I decided we were going to spend the day on that island which served as a day resort for military personnel. While there, we did some hiking, then checked out some snorkeling equipment, and headed to the designated snorkeling area. The water there was cloudy with sand being kicked up by the waves; not great for snorkeling—not if you want to see anything, anyway. My friend, who had been to the island before, suggested we go to the other side of the island, which was very rocky, to snorkel. So, even though there were multiple signs warning snorkelers to stay away from that area because it was dangerous, we figured “what’s a few rocks? We’re tough, we’re Marines, we can handle a few rocks.” So, we crawled over the rocks and boulders on our hands and knees and slid into the water. There we were treated to the most amazing sight. Below the waves were hundreds of fish of every stripe and color. It was like pictures you would see in National Geographic magazine. It was incredible.

That’s just half of the story. The other half is this. I’m not really a swimmer, so I hugged the shoreline, often propelling myself through the water by grabbing and pushing off the rocks and boulders just below me in the water. And all was going well. The one complication was that this was the ocean, and just a few years before that, the movie “Jaws” had come out. As I half swam, half crawled over the submerged rocks and boulders, the shark theme music from that movie kept popping into my head. And, when it did, I would quickly turn and look behind me to see if any great white sharks were following me. It was when I was distracted, looking over my shoulder for sharks that it happened. No, it wasn’t a shark behind me. It was when I turned back around to look in front of me, that I came face to face with some kind of eel. It was just inches from my snorkeling facemask. I got an extreme closeup of its eyes, but what I was most focused on was its teeth—which I wanted nothing to do with. I didn’t know what to do at that point, other than to turn and head the other way as fast as I could. At that moment, I discovered that, if need be, I could swim, and faster than I ever would have imagined. As I beat that hasty retreat, I looked over my shoulder to see that that eel had basically the same reaction to me as I had to it. It was squiggling off at lightning speed in the opposite direction.

As I recall that experience, I’d like to focus on those signs that warned us to stay away from the dangerous, rocky areas. At the time, we thought it was just the rocks themselves that presented the danger, and we chose to ignore that danger. But what I know now, after that experience, is that those warning signs were also about what was living in and amongst those rocks—which added significantly to that danger—something we hadn’t considered before.

In the gospels, Jesus tells us, urges us, even commands us to love one another. To love even our enemies. In a way, this is a warning—warning us away from not loving one another. But, we humans, throughout our history, have chosen largely to ignore this advice, urging, and command. We have seen only the surface danger, and we decided we are resilient enough to traverse that danger. But we missed the other dangers lurking amidst the uneven ground and rocks and boulders.

When some have so much and others have so little—and the ones with so much choose to hold tightly to what they have and what they enjoy, instead of truly sharing with those who have so little (and so little opportunity to change that), it is a recipe for the chaos of ongoing animosity, social upheaval, violence in our homes and on our streets, and wars that draw in still more and more people in. That is the hidden danger.

By hidden, I mean that it may not affect us directly here and now, but it will eventually have its terrible effect—perhaps 5 or 10 years down the line, or upon our children, or their children. Someone will end up paying the price for our failure to truly love one another. Is our present comfort worth that? Look at the legacy of the slave trade in America. In no way was that loving of one another. So now, even now, 158 years after its supposed end, we are still dealing with its repercussions—because we have failed, over and over since then, to truly love one another. We have failed to open our hands, to sacrifice a little of our comfort to uplift those around us. And the sins of the fathers have reaped vengeance upon their children and grandchildren. When will it stop?

It will stop when we choose to heed Jesus’ advice, urging, command, and warning to truly love one another. It will stop when we recognize that we are all connected, we are one family—under God. It will end when we open our hearts and hands to truly share our blessings, when we open our ears and our minds to the plight of others, when we choose to not put our comfort and perceived security over the well-being of others.

Then the king will say to those at his right hand, ‘Come, you who are blessed by my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world, for I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed me, I was naked and you gave me clothing, I was sick and you took care of me, I was in prison and you visited me.’ Then the righteous will answer him, ‘Lord, when was it that we saw you hungry and gave you food or thirsty and gave you something to drink? And when was it that we saw you a stranger and welcomed you or naked and gave you clothing? And when was it that we saw you sick or in prison and visited you?’ And the king will answer them, ‘Truly I tell you, just as you did it to one of the least of these brothers and sisters of mine, you did it to me.’ [Matthew 25:34-40]

Take care and God bless!

Pastor Randy
